MUSEUM OF TOLERANCE JERUSALEM HOSTS CONFRENCE OF PRESIDENTS ANNUAL SUMMIT

On February 18, The Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations held their 49th annual leadership conference at The Museum of Tolerance Jerusalem (MOTJ). The event was attended by the leaders of America's Jewish community, Prime Minister BenjaminNetanyahu and United States Ambassador to Israel Jack Lew.
Conference of Presidents CEO, William Daroff proclaimed that the Jewish community is more unified and solitary than any other point in his lifetime and that he has never seen this level of connectivity between American Jews and the people of Israel. He laid out the mission's goals: to meet with Israel's leaders visit kibbutzim destroyed by Hamas during their October 7 raid, and hold a memorial ceremony with survivors at the site of the Nova Music Festival, where 364 innocents were killed.Daroff noted unprecedented collaboration between Jewish organizations in the lead-up to the trip, with the goal of remaining united after the war is won declaring that "The Jewish people are strongest when unified - that is the lesson of the last 3,500 years.
United we succeed." Prime Minister Netanyahu echoed this sentiment, emphasizing the importance of solidarity between the Jewish people and the Jewish state during this difficult time. He described the imperative to return the hostages, and pledged "total victory" against Hamas in the war and pressured the audience that "Israel is united as never before."
Both the Prime Minister Netanyahu and Ambassador Lew were then presented with plaques created by Jerusalem artist Sharon Binder bearing the Biblical quote "The Guardian of Israel will neither slumber nor sleep."

" Israel is united as never before"

Herbert Block, head of the American Zionist Movement, spoke about the need for tolerance and understanding, especially at this particular moment. Malcolm Hoelein, executive vice president of the Conference of Presidents, reflected on his own experience of meeting with Simon Wiesenthal and remarked on the horror of Hamas' acts and the importance of educating future generations to recognize dangers and lead the charge against them.
US Ambassador Jack Lew highlighted the Conference of Presidents' role in advocating for American Jewish values and Israel's security.
He mentioned US support for Israel, the heroism of first responders, and civic initiatives that have uplifted the nation.

ISRAEL'S DRUZE: TOLERANCE AND INTEGRATION DURING WAR

" wear many hats; a Druze hat, an Israeli hat, a medical hat," says Prof. Salman S. Zarka, General Director of the Ziv Medical Center in Safed. "But instead of talking about how to separate them, my goal is to combine them." Israel's Druze community exemplifies how tolerance has created a thriving society although sometimes mirored by a feeling of inferiority in the Jewish state. More than ever, the events of October 7 and the subsequent Swords of Iron War demonstrate the Druze impact and desire for full integration in Israeli society. Today, the community has roughly 149,000 members, approximately 2% of Israel's population. The community is known for being tight-knit, opposing intermarriage and converts. The true tenets of the Druze faith are held secret by religious leaders. The Druze presence in the land of Israel dates back the 11th century, with the founding of the religion based on a tradition originating with Jethro, Moses' biblical father-in-law.

nlike other minority groups, Druze are subject to mandatory IDF service and have risen to prominent positions within the military. “We are partners in all that happens in the state... I work for my family, for my community, and for the entire state,but I am not a mercenary that fights for the Jewish state,” explained Zarka, an IDF colonel and former head of the Medical Corps of the Northern Command. “The Druze of Israel have no conflicts with the definition of the Jewish state; the right of return for the Jewish people, the flag of Israel, Jerusalem as the capital, and the tikva.” Despite their loyalty, legislation such as the Nation State Law and the Kaminitz Law create a feeling of inequality for the Druze.

They face challenges in building homes in their villages due to bureaucracy and refusals. However, the Druze put these issues aside to fight for Israel during times of war.Despite these challenges, “October 7th came and we put it to the side and came and fought... This is our state, we will fight for it, we believe in it, we live for it - in our heads and our hearts.” Per the IDF, 80% of the Druze serve in the army, including 39% in combat roles. As is the case in war, some have tragically fallen during the fight against Hamas.
A notable story was the heroism of Lt. Col. Salman Habaka, 33, who fell in November during the ground offensive in the Gaza Strip. Commander of the 188th Armored Brigade’s 53rd Battalion, Habaka hailed from a Druze family from the village of Yanuh-Jat, and was one of the first fighters to enter Kibbutz Be’eri during Hamas’s onslaught that left at least 130 dead in the town. Speaking after that first battle, Habaka said “We will have the upper hand at all times. We will not allow this inhumane, cowardly behavior, these weaklings, to bring down our spirits. We will rise stronger, united

“The nation rose [following October] and we rose too, it was natural… Our soldiers fought and unfortunately some fell, but the brotherhood - I want that story to be told forev-

At the time of his death, Habaka was the highest ranking officer to perish in the war. Prof. Zarka visited Habaka’s family and the family of Tomer Grinberg, another soldier who was saved by Habaka but ultimately fell in battle, and spoke extensively with the two bereaved families. He took away from these visits the true brotherhood that exists between the Jewish people and the Druze. “The nation rose [following October 7] and we rose too, it was natural... Our soldiers fought and unfortunately some fell, but the brotherhood - I want that story to be told forever,” he said. As a tribute to the two fallen, he decided to name his hospital’s new neurology department after Salman and Tomer, “as heroes and as friends.” The Druze contribution has not just been on the battlefield; members of their community have been cooking meals for soldiers, penning them letters, and showing their support for the nation they call home - Israel.
Even in politics, the community plays a large role. Majallie Whbee, a former deputy speaker of the Knesset and current Roving Ambassadorto the Parliamentary Assembly of the Mediterranean, emphasizes the Druze community’s dedication to Israel since its foundation in 1948. Mr. Whbee was also briefly the acting president of the state, the first nonJew to hold the title. “When I look at my faith and belief, according to its important principles, loyalty to the state you are living under is very important. Therefore, you even find people in the Druze community who are not serving in the army but their belief is this is our country and we must save it and keep

Focus has been on completion of the complex ceiling design in the multi purpose "Grand Hall." The design is comprised of seven glowing cloud formations that undulate and hover above the space. Technical elements such as mechanical diffusers, house lighting, theatrical truss supports, etc, are meticulously planned between the clouds. The structure was fabricated in China following extensive full scale mock up reviews and installed on site by our expert team from China. The clouds will be "closed" using a custom stretch fabric by Barrisol currently under fabrication in France. It is our hope that the enclosure will be delivered to site mid April such that the ceiling can be completed before Israel Independence Day. The lighting design of the clouds allows formultiple
